PersonBadger's Illustrated Catalogue of Cast-Iron ArchitectureCast iron facades were all the rage in the mid-Nineteenth century. With Badger's Catalogue, the preservationist will be better able to determine whether the subject building has a Badger facade or that of another cast iron designer/foundryman. A great work illustrating the history and repertoire of one of cast iron architecture's masters!

This is, without question, the most extensive, most ambitious, and most thoroughly documented primary source of cast-iron architecture in 19th-century America. Originally intended as an advertising device, it has become an architectural classic! New introduction by Margot Gayle. 102 black-and-white plates.
